DIRECTORATE

What are the Horizontal Principles?

All projects supported by the EU's regional and structural policy programme must be implemented in accordance with and respectfully of the programme's horizontal principles.

Horizontal principles include fundamental rights and principles in accordance with the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, gender equality, non-discrimination, equality in general and sustainable development.

Fundamental Rights and Equality Principles

11.1 - Fundamental Rights and Equality principles

Identify how the horizontal principles mentioned below are considered. What measures are planned throughout the project design, implementation, monitoring, reporting and evaluation stages to ensure that the principles are safeguarded?

Gender Equality	The Applicant should explain how equality amongst genders, integration of the gender perspective and gender mainstreaming are taken into account and promoted throughout the design, implementation, monitoring, reporting and closure of projects.
Equal Opportunities	The Applicant should take into consideration appropriate steps to ensure equal opportunities independent from gender, racial or ethnic origin, religion or belief, disability, age or sexual orientation throughout the design, implementation, monitoring, reporting and closure of projects.
Non-discrimination including accessibility for persons with disability	The Applicant should explain how measures are put in place during the design, implementation, monitoring, reporting and closure of projects to prevent discrimination in particular accessibility for persons with disabilities and ensure access for all.

The applicant should provide detailed information beyond the minimum legal obligations in these areas.

The applicant should explain how equality between men and women, equal opportunities, gender mainstreaming and the integration of the gender perspective are taken into account and promoted throughout the project design, implementation, monitoring, reporting and evaluation stages.

The Applicant should explain what measures are planned to be carried out to ensure appropriate steps are taken to prevent any form of discrimination based on gender, racial or ethnic origin, religion or belief, disability, age or sexual orientation during all project stages.

Gender Equality

The Applicant should explain how equality between men and women, integration of the gender perspective and gender mainstreaming are taken into account and promoted throughout the design, implementation, monitoring, reporting and closure of projects.

Equal Opportunities

The Applicant should take into consideration appropriate steps to ensure equal opportunities independent from gender, racial or ethnic origin, religion or belief, disability, age or sexual orientation throughout the design, implementation, monitoring, reporting and closure of projects.

Non-discrimination including accessibility for persons with disability

The Applicant should explain how measures are put in place during the design, implementation, monitoring, reporting and closure of projects to prevent discrimination in particular accessibility for persons with disabilities and ensure access for all.

What is the Charter?

The EU Charter of Fundamental Rights is included as a new horizontal principle to be assessed in project applications for EU regional and structural policy funds.

The Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union (the “Charter”) lays out the fundamental rights and liberties of EU citizens, which all EU institutions have a duty to safeguard, even national authorities.

It reaffirms rights based on constitutional traditions and international obligations common to EU Member States and represents the fundamental values of the EU.

Enjoyment of these rights entails responsibilities and duties with regard to other persons, to the human community and to future generations.

See the Charter of Fundamental Rights: Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union \(2000/C 364/01\)

When does the Charter apply?

Since 2009, the Charter has the same legal status as the Treaties, the EU law on which EU legislation is based. EU institutions must comply with it in all their activities, and Member States must also comply with it when they implement EU law.

Member States implement EU law notably when they:

- give effect to EU legislation by adopting national implementing measures;
- adopt legislation where EU law imposes specific obligations, or allows for a derogation;
- implement EU funding programmes in line with the EU funding rules.

What is the scope?

Art. 51 – “The provisions of this Charter are addressed to the institutions and bodies of the Union with due regard for the principle of subsidiarity and to the Member States only when they are implementing Union law. They shall therefore respect the rights, observe the principles and promote the application thereof in accordance with their respective powers.”

Whilst some fundamental rights are absolute, such as right to life and prohibition of torture, other are not absolute. Art. 52 – “Any limitation on the exercise of the rights and freedoms recognised by this Charter must be provided for by law and respect the essence of those rights and freedoms. Subject to the principle of proportionality, limitations may be made only if they are necessary and genuinely meet objectives of general interest recognised by the Union or the need to protect the rights and freedoms of others.”

What are the rights enshrined in the Charter?

The Charter contains 54 articles grouped into 7 chapters:

Chapter I: Dignity

Chapter II: Freedoms

Chapter III: Equality

Chapter IV: Solidarity

Chapter V: Citizens' rights

Chapter VI: Justice

Chapter VII: General provisions

CHAPTER I: DIGNITY

Art. 1: Human dignity is inviolable, must be respected and protected

Aligning with the Charter Principles

When a project is being planned, the principles and rights enshrined in the Charter shall be at the centre and the project shall be viewed from a human-rights based approach. Applicants must therefore be able to explain how their project contributes to, and meets the requirements of, the Charter and the principles enshrined therein.

This presentation serves to provide an overview of the rights enshrined in the Charter and to guide applicants in their assessment of their application's contribution to the Charter principles. Applicants should look at all the Charter rights and evaluate whether their project would impact any of those rights, and if there is potential for impact, what safeguards can be introduced to ensure respect of those rights.

For instance, in the case of equality, one must ensure, amongst others, that no individuals are excluded from participation in a project on the ground of their Protected Characteristics, the needs of all potential beneficiaries are considered at project design stage, new building and upgrading of existing buildings need to cater for accessibility for all, and support is targeted towards under-represented communities where relevant.

Self-assessment Questions

- Is the project equitable and inclusive? Does the applicant foster an inclusive environment, such as having gender-neutral bathrooms and the use of multiple languages?
- Does the project implementation pose any challenges related to any Protected Characteristic? If so, how are these being addressed?
- How does the project accommodate diverse needs, such as those related to disability, religious beliefs, or cultural background?
- How is accessibility ensured? Is the physical infrastructure modified to be fully accessible and properly equipped to enhance opportunities for all workers and beneficiaries?

Self-assessment Questions

- Will there be training on how to recognise, address and mitigate unconscious bias to ensure a human-rights-based approach?
- What measures or policies does the applicant have in place to both prevent and address harassment and violence in the workplace, labour exploitation, etc.? Does the applicant have any internal policies related to Charter rights and principles? Does the applicant communicate to third parties involved in the implementation of the project such policies?
- Does the applicant carry out any due diligence when engaging third parties in the implementation of the project, to evaluate that third party's adherence with Charter principles? Will third parties be held accountable if they do not adhere to Charter principles and how?
- How does the applicant ensure that its policies are adhered to by its staff and affiliated third parties?
- Does the applicant have a data protection policy? How does the applicant ensure adherence to this policy by its staff and affiliated third parties?

Practical examples of how to fulfil the horizontal principles:

Data is disaggregated

Protection of personal data

Target audience includes also minorities or vulnerable groups

Non-discrimination based on any ground.

Respect of cultural, religious and linguistic diversity.

Events are accessible for all

Integration of persons with disabilities

Activities organised are gender balanced, for example, gender balance in panels

At what stage of the project cycle do the Horizontal Principles apply?

It is important to keep in mind that fundamental rights need to be incorporated throughout:

project design

Implementation

monitoring

reporting

evaluation

What is the role of HRD?

- The Human Rights Directorate have the mandate to advise Government on matters pertaining human rights.
- The Directorate may provide advice related to the adherence to the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights in Malta, including in the application of the EU Charter in EU-funded projects.

How to seek assistance?

In order to seek HRD's assistance on the application of the EU Charter in EU-funding proposals:

- Prepare a brief of your proposal outlining the aims and objectives, main activities and target groups.
- Go through horizontal principles section and propose points intended to be included in your project application.
- Send an email on eufunds.hrd@gov.mt including the above.
- Include the call under which proposal is being submitted, and deadline of call.

Do not leave until the last minute to seek advice.

Remember you know your application best!
