2021MT14MFPR001	EMFAF.00.180	The overall aim of this project is to increase species diversification of Maltese aquaculture industry by introducing pioneering new marine species such as the Greater amberjack ( Seriola dumerilii ) and the Red porgy ( Pagrus pagrus ) to allow the sector growth to be sustainable, proactive, and competitive. The objective is the development of species-specific farming protocols for these species, and this will be achieved through the utilisation of SMART technologies and interdisciplinary R&D solutions. The expected results will produce standardized hatchery protocols for the selected species.		2	2.1	MT00	Aquatic Resources Malta	3	7	7	13	0	2	3	2	738835.00	738835.00

A harmonised implementation of management processes under these policy processes will be sought. Management measures to be implemented reflect those adopted by Malta for marine N2K sites and MSFD Programmes of Measures. An ecosystem-based approach to management is adopted, whereby human activity is addressed in an integrated manner through engagement of relevant stakeholders. The main thrust of the management processes is a shift towards sustainable use of the marine environment, whilst actively seeking restoration of disturbed or deteriorated habitats. Through implementation of measures, the project aims to contribute to protection and		5	1.6	MT00	Environment and Resources Authority	4	7	7	12	5	1	1	2	2011600.00	2011600.00
